Our computers run on your support!
The Computer Museum, the world's only museum devoted solely to computing, offers a unique combination of historic and interactive hands-on exhibits designed to educate the public about the evolution, workings, applications and impact of computers. A public non-profit institution since 1982, the Museum possesses the world's most comprehensive collection of historical computers, robots and related artifacts.

With growing recognition of the need for alternative methods in science and technology education, informal learning environments like The Computer Museum have assumed a critical role in creating a scientifically literate society.

The Computer Museum, a frontrunner in providing hands-on interactive opportunities to explore technology, creates and supports an environment in which visitors can experiment with the very tools that shape their everyday lives.

A contribution to the Annual Fund helps us maintain our collection, supports a variety of education programs and activities, and enables us to provide quality programs for our national audience. Your gift supports the preservation of history and is an investment in the future of technology.
